Focusing design professionals and students on as precious a resource as water makes the Reece Bathroom Innovation Award one of the more important design awards in Australia today.

Not only does the Award invest in the culture of design, research and development, it also invests in Australian manufacturing, by offering the chance to have winning designs produced locally as part of the prize.

It was a pleasure to be a member of the judging panel (while editor of Monument) for the 2007 Award. I wish this year's entrants the best of luck.
